

Questions and Answers About the Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness Response Act of 2002

Q. What is the “Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness Response Act of 2002” (Public Law 107-188)?

A. On June 12, 2002, the President signed the “Public Health Security and Bioterrorism Preparedness Response Act of 2002” into law. To see the text, go to www.access.gpo.gov/nara/publaw/107publ.html. Public Law 107-188 is designed to improve the ability of the United States to prevent, prepare for, and respond to bioterrorism and other public health emergencies. It requires people possessing, using, or transferring agents or toxins deemed a threat to public health to notify the Secretary of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). It also requires people possessing, using, or transferring agents or toxins deemed a threat to animal or plant health and to animal or plant products to notify the Secretary of the U. S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). For USDA, the section of the new Act that pertains to agents and toxins that pose a severe threat to animal and plant health and to animal and plant products is called the “Agricultural Bioterrorism Protection Act of 2002.”

Q. What agents or toxins are deemed a threat to animal or plant health or to animal or plant products?

A. An interim rule with the list of agents and toxins deemed a threat to animal or plant health or to animal or plant products is published in the August 12, 2002 Federal Register to see the text, go to <http://www.aphis.usda.gov/ppd/rad/webrepor.html>. Written comments regarding the agents and toxins on the list will be accepted through October 11, 2002.

Q. What agents or toxins are deemed a threat to public health?

A. The agents and toxins deemed a threat to public health are listed in Appendix A of Chapter 42 Code of Federal Regulations, Part 72. To see the text, go to <http://www.gpo.gov/nara/cfr/>.

Q. Who is affected by the new law?

A. Anyone possessing, using, or transferring any “Select Agents,” “High Consequence Livestock Pathogens and Toxins,” and/or other agents or toxins deemed a severe threat to plant health or to plant products is affected. People who exclusively possess products that are, or contain “Select Agents” and that are cleared, approved, licensed, or registered under any of the Acts listed below are exempt from the notification requirement. These Acts are:
